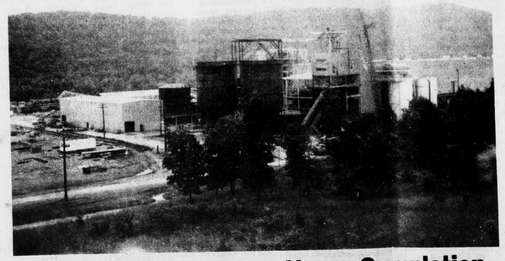
Virginia Fibre Complex Nears Completion



by Barrye L. Wall

EDITOR'S NOTE: Barrye L. Wall, a rising sophomore at Duke University, is the son of Mrs. Jacqueline J. Wall and the late J. Barrye Wall, Jr., of Farmville.

Each summer morning approximately five hundred workers converge on the Virginia Fibre Corporation building site located near Riverville in order to complete construction of the corrugating medium plant that was begun in November of 1973, John F. Steedley, VFC vice president in charge of manufacturing, remarked last week that the target date for the opening of the fifty-four million dollar complex is the last week in July.

The plant, which would employ 170 persons when operative, produces the paper used as the fluted center of a corrugated shipping container.

Steedley stated that the Eastern seaboard will provide the main market for the product, although transactions with companies all over the world are expected.

Located in Amherst County and across the James River from Appomattox County, the new plant will inject millions of dollars each year into the area economy. The primary local advantage of the mill is that it provides a stable market for hardwood all year round within at least a fifty mile radius.

At full production, the operation requires over 175,000 cords of wood a year, and the market value of this wood is over four million dollars, a significant financial boost to local owners of timber and to local woodcutters.

In addition, Steedley noted that the payroll for the plant is 2.75 million dollars per year and that freight costs will be 2 million dollars annually. Fuel and electric bills will together top 6 million dollars yearly while miscellaneous costs will add an additional million dollars expense.

With incoming trained paper industry people settling primarily in either Amherst or Appomattox County, the area can also expect further growth in the volume of business.

According to Steedley, the Virginia Fibre Corporation is continuing studies into the feasibility of adding a newsprint production plant to the existing corrugating medium complex at Riverville. The newsprint mill, if constructed, would cost approximately one hundred million dollars, and it would require primarily pine wood and old newspapers in its production of newsprint.

The site in Central Virginia was selected by the Virginia Fibre Corporation because of the abundance of such natural resources as hardwood, water and power. The Corporation originally felt a problem might arise in the area due to a shortage of pulpwood production, but Steedley commented that the Corporation is now convinced that the production of wood will be more than ample to supply the needs of the plant.

Hardwood is the primary wood necessary for production of the corrugated medium and this wood will be procured within a one-hundred mile radius. In his description of the procurement program, Steedley stated that the Corporation will buy wood from anybody so long as contractor producers cannot provide all the plant's needs. The Corporation plans to buy timber from private owners and then contract woodcutters to bring in the timber.

The head of the wood procurement department for VFC is Rhett Mozingo, while the head of Appomattox procurement operations is Mike Gibbs.

The VFC offers a free forest management service to any private owners, that will provide information on the types of timber that can be grown on the individual's land and the value of the timber. This service will also arrange for harvesting and planting of

Electric Utility Rates Soar

The electric utility rates used to be of minor importance when considering the budgets of the Town of Appomattox, but now things have changed. Under the new contracts negotiated with VEPCO by the joint steering committee of the Virginia Municipal League, the Virginia Association of Counties, and the Virginia Housing and Redevelopment Authority, the Town of Appomattox can expect an increase of a whopping 180 percent in the cost of electricity to operate water pumps according to Town Manager, W. S. Slagle. Other types of electrical usage have also increased according-ly.

This anticipated increase is approximately due to variable rates for different pumping periods.

In any case the matter of utility rates has become a major problem for local governments across the state and caught the attention of the 1975 General Assembly. A special committee has been appointed by Governor Godwin to study the relationship between public utilities (specifically electrical companies) and governmental entities.

Meanwhile you will probably see a water rate increase and requests for additional services requiring increased electrical energy will, in all probability, be more critically evaluated than before.

Board Approves Plans For Summer School

Meeting on Thursday night, June 5 members of the Appomattox County School Board approved state and local regulations and a philosphy for a summer school program in the county.

Summer school for secondary students in this division, according to board members, shall operate according to guidelines established by the State Board of Education and the local School Board, and will operate for the following purposes: to enable students, who have failed subjects, to take these classes to earn credit; to enable students to enrich and expand their curriculum; and to enable students who are behind their expected grade levels to earn sufficient credits in order that they may complete their public school education in the usual number of years.

It is the feeling of the School Board that a student should attend school for a minimum of thirteen years, kindergarten through grade 12, not to take summer school classes in order to try and complete school in a shorter number of years.

Approximately 12 to 15 students are expected to enroll in summer school in Appomattox County. Students who participate in summer school classes shall pay tuition charges as set annually by the School Board. The fee established for 1975-76 is $60 for new courses and $35 for repeat courses. The regular textbook rental fee shall be charged.

The Annual and Five Year Plans for Appomattox County Public Schools was discussed but no action was taken at this meeting.

New Track Ready at ACHS

It was about a year ago that members of the Appomattox Lions Club began to think about the need for a track for students interested in this sport at Appomattox County High School.

Now, after much planning and spending a total of $1500, the Lions are proud to say that the track, located on the southside of the new high school is completed.

The cinder track, 440 yards in distance, circles the football field at the new high school. There has been a track team in Appomattox for a number of years but during the 1975-76 school session, ACHS will for the first time be able to host track meets.

The Appomattox Lions Club is to be commended on this project that will add to our athletic program and will help our youth interested in the increasingly popular sport -running.
